Bomb Factory Raided

CHICAGO—FBI agents have seized a secret ledger that they say may lead to Puerto Rican terrorists here and across the nation.

The ledger was confiscated after an 80-man police and FBI task force dismantled a terrorist bomb factory in a Northwest Side flat.

Recovered in the sweep were more than 200 sticks of dynamite, blasting caps and powder, wire and batteries and literature of the FALN Puerto Rican terrorists.

The FALN, which takes its name from the Spanish words of "Armed Forces of National Liberation," has taken credit for bombings here in 1975 and last summer, as well as bombings in New York and Denver.

Still sought on a federal warrant was Carlos Alberto Torres, 24, a suspected FALN member. The warrant charges Torres with unlawful possession of unregistered explosives.

Torres, according to Chicago police, rented the third-floor walkup flat that housed the bomb factory.
